

You can't fool all the people, all the time. I will fight against the incorporation of the FCC. You are a public entity. Why won't you serve the public? Have you no understanding of how being in bed with the Bush administration is ruining our democracy? You have no understanding of History. Do you like being ruled by a King? Why don't you educate yourselves before you send the progression of the standard of living in United States toppling backwards sixty years? Where is your impartiality?

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
